

Abstract

The present invention relates to a process for imaging deep ultraviolet (uv) photoresists with a topcoat using deep uv immersion lithography. The invention s further relates to a topcoat composition comprising a polymer with at least one ionizable group having a pK_a ranging from about -9 to about 11.